

Online Teaching Resources:

“Prezi” <http://prezi.com/>

Prezi is an application - an editor that lets you create Prezi presentations. However, unlike many applications, Prezi can be used directly from an Internet browser (e.g. Firefox, Internet Explorer, Chrome, Safari) without the need to install anything. Prezi can also be installed (we call this Prezi Desktop) so you can use it without Internet access.

“Voki” <http://www.voki.com/>

Voki is a free service that allows you to create personalized speaking avatars and use them on your blog, profile, and in email messages.

“Screencast” <http://screencast.com/>

Screencast is a way of uploading videos, photos, and other information on one website. Individuals can share information via Screencast and create interactive blogs.

“REALIA: Rich Electronic Archive for Language Instruction Anywhere”

<http://www.realiaproject.org/index.html>

“The goal of the REALIA Project is to develop and implement a searchable digitized media database which will provide instructors of modern languages with teaching resources accessible via the Web. REALIA will publish royalty-free, faculty-reviewed media for scholars and students, and be open to all disciplines that wish to contribute or use cultural materials appropriate for instruction at the college and secondary level. The REALIA Project seeks to increase through collaboration the quantity of high-quality teaching and learning materials by providing a respected venue for media projects that otherwise might not be shared or published.”

“Calling on CALL” <https://calico.org/page.php?id=412>

“CALICO, the Computer Assisted Language Instruction Consortium is a professional organization that serves a membership involved in both education and technology. CALICO has an emphasis on language teaching and learning but reaches out to all areas that employ the languages of the world to instruct and to learn. CALICO is a recognized international clearinghouse and leader in computer assisted learning and instruction. It is a premier global association dedicated to computer-assisted language learning (CALL).”

“Project Merlot” <http://worldlanguages.merlot.org/>

Project Merlot is an online resource for all educators at all levels. In the “world languages” section of the website, educators can access thousands of different online resources to use in their classroom and provide for their students.

“Texas Language Technology Center”

<http://tltc.la.utexas.edu/tlhc/projects/index.html>

The principal purpose of TLTC is to develop instructional technology – especially multimedia course materials – to be used in language instruction on the UT campus and shared with other institutions and the public at large.

“UCLA Language Materials Project: Teaching Resources for Less Commonly Taught Languages” <http://www.lmp.ucla.edu/K%2D12/>